Situated on a hill in the Nation's Capital, American University is a complex of the ideas and attitudes of more than 8,000 students. Representing different geographic, socio-economic, and cultural backgrounds, it is a unique crossroads of the world. Added to the formal processes of education is the intangible factor of social interaction. To mix or to remain aloof is the student's perogative. Discussions, whether in classrooms, dormitory, or cafeteria, are equally important in the educational process. Through this, a student learns, grows, and gains a clearer perspective of the world in which he lives. For this reason—the 1963 Talon presents The American University as a "crossroads of the world."

...crossroads of the world

The Administration

The administration is the nucleus of any university life. Taking an active interest in student welfare, the administrative executives are concerned with all phases of student development. Serving as guide, mentor, and counselor, the administrator is one of the largest influences in a student's life.

Dr. Hurst R. Anderson is a man who takes his responsibilities seriously. He is interested in furthering the highest ideals of the American University and in providing the best in modern education. He finds satisfaction in his work, especially in direct contact with the students. He takes great pride in working with the members of our student government, and is vitally interested in all that they attempt. The social functions are also of importance, and he takes pride in crowning the Homecoming Queen each year, as well as participating in the student activities. In addition to heading the faculty and student body of the American University, Dr. Anderson is active in several religious activities and educational groups. He is now serving as the president of the Association of American Colleges. This year has seen many improvements on this campus, and it is his conviction that each project will be beneficial.

The President

man with an idea, a goal,
and a plan.
His vocation is this university, and his hope is directed toward its success.
He leads our university
in an effort to increase world understanding through education.

Vice Presidents and Deans

The Vice-Presidents of the University are responsible for the maintenance and curriculum of the various schools and are also involved with such projects as admissions, counseling, summer sessions, special studies, and graduate degree studies. The Deans of the various schools also have a responsibility to their faculty and students. Maintaining the curriculum while trying to raise standards is not an easy task, but one that is necessary for any university, especially one that is expanding as rapidly as ours. It is vital to the life of the University that academic standards increase in proportion to rapid physical growth.

College of Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences is the most complex and the largest part of The American University. The primary objective of the college is to provide a program of liberal art studies which produce graduates with an understanding of mankind and the world in which he lives.

The college consists of eighteen departments which are organized into the divisions of humanities, natural sciences and mathematics, social sciences, fine and communicative arts and education. Most of the liberal arts fields are represented in these divisions.

An outstanding feature of the college is the honors study program. Students participating in general honors take a series of four seminars under the direction of an honors professor. The topics they discuss are drawn from the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities. Students taking departmental honors study independently in areas of special interest.

School of International Service

To insure the success of Americans overseas, the I. S. school directs its students toward an understanding of various cultures, a communicative ability and an adequate personal philosophy. I. S. offers nine programs ranging from education overseas to the study of international relations.

Special Studies

The Division of General and Special Studies is primarily concerned with adult education. There are approximately 2000—3000 part-time, non-degree and evening students who attend the University's classes. The Division also administers an off-campus program with thirty locations in the Washington area and in five military installations in Georgia and South Carolina.

The Regulatory Bodies

It is the function of all campus regulatory bodies to make policy and see to its execution. Legislative and judicial problems are co-ordinated through these groups. All organizations are responsible to the Student Association. Thus students regulate their own government.

President James Galloway

Vice-President Robert Stone

Student Senate

By a referendum this spring, College Council had its name changed to Student Senate. The Student Senate is composed of four executive officers and elected representatives from each class. Campus Center Board, Inter-Religious Club Council, and Inter-Club Council all send a representative. A member of the faculty and a representative from the office of Student Personnel also sit on the Student Senate.

The Student Senate is vested with the job of carring out the legislative and executive functions of the Student Association at the American University. With the help of its committees, the Student Senate discusses important matters affecting campus life. This year the Student Senate dealt with such problems as student standards, and the improvement of communications between the student body and the student government. The growing parking problem was also discussed at length. The Student Association consituation was revised to improve the functioning of the Student Senate. Parents' Weekend, quickly becoming an established tradition at AU, is sponsored by the Student Senate, as is the Book of the Semester program.

Campus Center Board

EXECUTIVE BOARD—Keith Fleer, Susan Brown, David Slater, David Shields.

Campus Center Board plans the presentation of social and cultural events which take place on the American University campus. Campus Center Board comes under the jurisdiction of the Student Senate and is composed of four executive officers and representatives from each class. Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, and Women's Resident Regulations Board all send a delegate while other members are appointed by the executive committee of Campus Center Board.

Some of the activities handled this year include Homecoming and Spring Weekends, concerts by the Journeymen, Odetta and the Lettermen, Peter Nero and lectures given by William Golding.

Another function of Campus Center Board is the supervision of all student elections on the campus. Each semester Campus Center Board publishes a calender of student events which notifies everyone of coming activities sponsored by the various organizations of the American University.

Student Committees

Six committees help formulate Student Senate policies. The Orientation Board acquaints new students with the campus. Working to improve communication between students and administration is the Student-Faculty Committee. Such problems as adequate library hours are examined by the Student Health and Welfare Committee. The Publications Committee acts as a forum in which student editors may discuss problems. Newly formed campus organizations must have their constitutions approved by the Constitution Committee. Groups wishing money from the Student Association must present their request to the Finance Committee. The Elections Committee, an organ of Campus Center Board, handles student elections.

Women's Residence Council

Women's Residence Council, a legislative body composed of elected presidents from the house councils and delegates from the executive committees, makes policies governing resident women.

Women's Resident Regulation Board, the judiciary body, is composed of eleven women chosen from the four classes. They handle serious infringements of the residence regulations. Together the groups write the Coed Code, an explanation and list of the dormitory

Inter-Club Council

The Inter-Club Council is composed of the Presidents or elected delegates from each campus club recognized by the Student Association. The Council is chaired by the Vice-President of the Student Association. The main function of the Council is to provide a program that co-ordinates and provides for communication between the various campus organizations and groups. A tea, held each year, for all club presidents and advisers, stimulates student faculty relationships. One of the functions of the Council is to allocate funds to clubs that wish to sponsor lectures. The lecture committee has sponsored such people as Frank Wilkerson, Dr. William H. Crocker, and Professor Brand Blanshard. An important part of Orientation Week is the Club Fair. Booths are set up in the Quad, displaying various features of different clubs. Inter-Club Council was instrumental in providing the campus with a Student Activity guide to assist groups in making their activities most effective.

Inter-Religious Club Council

The Inter-Religious Club Council acts as a liaison between the Student Senate and the campus religious clubs. It is composed of the president and one representative from each of the recognized religious organizations at A.U. This year the Council sponsored the "University Lectures

On Religion," a series featuring speakers of different denominations. The Council also initiated the Expresso Nights to provide an atmosphere for informal conversation, discussion, and enjoyment of the arts.

Sorority and Fraternity Regulation Boards

Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council are the governing bodies of the social sororities and fraternities at AU. Each sorority and fraternity sends two representatives to their respective councils. Each of the boards is responsible for rush activities at the beginning of each semester. The two groups work together to produce Songfest and the I.F.C. Dance. At Christmas time, sorority and fraternity pledges under the supervision of I.F.C. hold an Orphans' Dinner. Both councils make awards for high scholarship achievement within the Greek groups. Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils strive to improve campus life at American University through their respective sororities and fraternities.

The Seniors

Graduation is the culmination of a four year educational process. A senior has conflicting emotions: regret that the four years are over, and anticipation for the years ahead. The future is unknown but an attempt has been made to recapture the past in these pages.

...crossroads
of the world

The

Academic and Social Life

College life is centered around two basic elements—the social and the academic. Through participation in both areas, horizons are broadened. The following pages depict various activities of an American University student, both on and off campus.

There is nothing more typical of a new semester than registration with lines which seem to reach infinity.

Registration and Orientation

Twisting the night away at an orientation mixer

Each fall, hundreds of students descend on the AU campus. Ostensibly, the purpose is to orient all freshmen and transfer students to campus life. But upperclassmen also use it as an excuse to return early, see old friends, and look over the new crop of frosh girls. The week, planned since the previous spring, is carried out by volunteer students. Upperclassmen act as freshmen advisers in the big sister-big brother program, as well as student academic advisers, taking some of the load off the factulty advisers. Besides placement tests, various functions are held, as the Greek open houses, street dances, and the traditional picnic-where freshmen receive their beanies. Outstanding features are the Club Fair on the Quad, the watermelon feast for transfers, and bus tours to downtown Washington. The week ends in the mad maze and intracacies of registration, heralded by long lines and confusion.

The musical magic of guitarist Charlie Byrd entrances the audience at the outdoor concert held in the amphitheatre.

To "kill two birds with one stone," one can bring lunch for hours of waiting in registration lines leading to Clendenen.

Upperclassman, Mabel Johnson has the honor of capping Sandy Mac-Vickar at the ceremony proclaiming each frosh a "nebish."

Orientation and Registration

Seniors, David Shields and Mary Rice attend orientation picnic.

The club fair offers freshman a look at extracurricular activities.

Homecoming 1962

Homecoming, "AU Under the Big Top," was the best yet seen. The circus theme was carried out throughout the week-end, with cut out paper animals in the Quad, flags flying, and cotton candy. A high school band played for the parade, which was marked this year by floats spectacular for their ingenious moving parts. The Pep Rally was followed by a queen cavalcade and later a basketball game with the Quantico Marines. The dance was held at Indian Springs Country Club. The three days of entertainment were concluded with a concert on campus, given by the "Journeymen."

What is American University? For some it is a complete isolated world awhirl with activity. Others view it as a transient phase, a temporary resting place, before venturing further. Whether it is a hub of all of a student's interest or a part of the larger entity—the nearby city or the world—it has a different meaning for each person. Much depends from which end of the spectrum it is viewed. "Around Campi" is a local expression, meaning a general pleasantry or an amorphus designation of location. The Talon feels this section represents many facets of the varied aspects and faces of AU. There is something for each person, regardless how he views The American University.

Rush

Rush begins a few weeks after school starts and continues for three party-and-pressure packed weeks. Open houses, theme parties, and formal parties are held before bids are given out. Bid day is one of excitement and disappointment. Sorority rushees, receiving their bids, race over to the sorority rooms to be met by eestatic, screaming, and happy members.

Fraternity rush is one round of parties after another...

Phi Sigma Sigma girls put on a skit to entertain rushees.

More reserved but none the less excited, fraternity presidents call out their bids on the steps of Mary Graydon Center and exchange a warm handshake with their pledges. The day is climaxed by a "Meet the Greeks" dance, where pledges and members of various Greek groups can meet one another.

Singing Johnny Knight entertains rushees at the Phi Sigma Kappa house.

Alpha Sigs Don Kaplan and Bill Coyle engage in a brief repartee between rush parties.

Sorority parties consist of talk, tea, and more talk

Sig Olympics

Each year Sig Olympics is carefully planned by the men of Alpha Sigma Phi... often to the consternation of the Greek women, but always to their utter hilarity and enjoyment. This highly competitive day includes such feats as pie eating contests, a three legged race, an egg relay, and the climax of a raucous tug of war! The Alpha Sigs act as the sponsors, planners, rule makers and, of course, the judges. One of the mighty Alpha Sigs acts as a Greek torchbearer, announcing the day as part of the Second Annual Parents' Weekend. This year, the girls of Alpha Chi Omega won for the second year in a row, with the Phi Mu women and the DG's close behind. This Greek day is exactly that, requiring stoic acts of courage and fortitude as the events can often be somewhat rough-house.

Ming Smith holds steady.

The girls of Phi Mu chorused their way to the trophy by way of the "Road to Oz."

The ZBT's and their lovely "dame" added a certain filip to the evening with their "South Pacific" song.

With nighties, caps, and fuzzy slippers, the "Sleepy Time Gals" of Alpha Epsilon Phi added their bit to the evening.

Songfest

Fashion seemed to set the key note at this year's Songfest, with several firsts, costume wise as well as musically. The DG's made a grand entrance in their floor length gold brocade gowns, the first to be worn here. The Phi Sigs, who seem to decrease their costume each year, this season showed bibs, diapers and baby bonnets! The men of Tau Epsilon Phi acted as true minstrels, with classic black faces. Both the ATO's and the Alpha Sigs were formal, featured in tuxedo's and quiet reserve. The girls of Phi Mu, Kappa Delta and AXO were a rainbow of blues, while the AEPhi ladies were sleepy in their clever nightshirts.

The crowd pleasing Phi Sigma Kappas' again proved exceptional with their portrayal of "Baby Face," featuring hammy Chris Tsucalas,

The black-faced minstrels of TEP sang an unusal rendition of "Born in Bethlehem."

A medley of songs from the "Sound of Music" was Kappa Delta's entry.

Each group sang one fraternity song and one more secular number. The winning groups and their songs were: Alpha Sigma Phi with the "Drummer and the Cook," and Phi Mu, with a "Wizard of Oz Medley." This year's Master of Ceremonies was Jim Trotter, an alumnus of Tau Epsilon Phi and presently a law student in graduate school. Songfest is a part of the annual Interfraternity week-end, while this one event is jointly sponsored by both councils.

Each spring the Interfraternity Council has as one of its many activities, the IFC week-end. The 1963 Week-end has Miss Ijo Caplan as its queen and she reigned in regal beauty. Vic Samra, who was the IFC co-ordinator for this year, also acted as the Master of Ceremonies at the Dance, which was held at the Shoreham Hotel. The bands were much appreciated, as there were two, including a dance band and a rock 'n' roll group. On the previous night, the Greek groups had presented Songfest.

The Extra-Curricular

Extracurricular activities perform a vital function on campus. They provide an outlet for student expression, whether it is creative (as publications, plays, or music) or functional (as in the interest clubs). The honoraries recognize exceptional ability and efforts of students in academic fields.

Interest Clubs

From women's athletics, Young Democrats and Republicans, to the Society for the Advancement of Management—the spectrum of student interests at the American University is reflected in the large number and variety of clubs on campus. These clubs supplement and carry on interest in class rooms and provide an outlet for students to take an active part and important role in University, as well as community activites. Under the guidance of the Inter-Club Council, their programs are co-ordinated and strengthened through mutual co-operation.

Honoraries

American University can be very proud of its system of honoraries which represent many different phases of academic interest. The students who are members of these honoraries have excelled in their individual fields, whether they are speech arts, political science, or education. With more students becoming a part of these honoraries each year, it is hoped that they will continue to take an active interest in campus academic life.

To supplement the outstanding places of worship in Washington, these groups attempt to meet the needs of students in a busy intellectual environment. From worship and parties, to retreats and serious discussion groups, these groups include the searchers as well as the faithful. Catholicism, most of the major denominations of Protestantism, and Judaism all have active organizations. With the educational purpose of the University to educate the "whole man," these groups are an invaluable part of any student's preparation for life.

Second semester Editor, David Rosenberg, finds leading the Eagle an arduous task.

Mike Trilling, first semester Editor, displays first edition.

In charge of advertising and accounts is Joel Karims, Business Manager.

The Eagle

For the first time in the long history of the Eagle at the American University, an attempt was made to publish the paper twice a week. This step was initiated by first semester editor, Mike Trilling and continued through out the second half of the year by second semester editor, David Rosenberg. The school newspaper also strove to bring to the campus community a varied coverage of news, features, sports, and editorial comment. It was the paper's policy to bring news to the campus as soon after it happened as was possible.

It is traditional that a paper be printed by letterpress process but early in the spring, Editor Rosenberg experimented with offset printing in an effort to have a more flexible printing schedule. However, this did not prove feasible and the Eagle returned to letterpress. Among the highlights of the "All American" award winning paper was its coverage of local elections in adjacent Washington, Maryland, and Virginia, in November of 1962. The Eagle included weekly reports from the Student Senate and contained a strong editorial page which included comments of national interest.

The Talon

The Talon is the annual attempt to do the impossible—to capture the people, activities, and spirit of the American University and reduce them to a couple of hundred pages. Each year a group of students attempts to bring these varied aspects of the AU world into book form, a full-time job done by part-time workers. This book, as every other, is much more than a collection of pictures, words, and space. It is, rather, the culmination of a year of hard work—the abstract of creative ideas, as well as the necessary regularities of schedules, meetings, layouts and, of course, the haunting deadlines. The problems are many, and the Talon office is one of the most hectic on campus. Aside from the late hours, missed and re-scheduled deadlines, staff worries . . . there is the natural satisfaction of seeing the ideas and efforts grow as they evolve into our idea of a good book. The Talon staff hopes that this edition will please those who read it. We have tried to capture the year for you. May the Talon now speak for itself.

The Writer

The WRITER again this year published two issues, with Nanci Moore as editor of the fall publication, and James Lee heading production of the spring issue.

The Spring issue was highlighted by many changes including new layout and format, as well as a greater variety of material. Five new editors were added to the magazine staff in the areas of politics, business, science, art, communications and humanities.

The Spring issue marked a new effort by the magazine to fulfill its role as the voice of the independent thinking of the student body. Through the pages of the WRITER, students expressed their thoughts in short stories, essays, poetry, music and art.

Decision-making is the job of Editor James Lee.

WAMU

WAMU is the largest extra-curricular activity at the American University. This year has seen the growth of WAMU to a position of prominence both on and off campus. WAMU-AM reaches all on-campus students with programming designed for the college student. In addition to providing musical entertainment, discussions, and remote coverage of major campus events, WAMU offers opportunities for experimentation in the broadcast field for both the serious broadcast student and the student with a more casual interest in broadcasting, during its 87 hour a week schedule, WAMU-FM broadcasts programs of an educational and cultural nature to the greater Washington area. Experienced students are invited to participate in producing a portion of its 70 hour a week schedule. It is the purpose of WAMU to continue to foster and promote the art of aural broadcasting to the campus and the community.

The University debating team, this year's Maryland-Washington Forensic Conference Champions, has completed one of its most successful years. Debating this year's topic, "Resolved: That the Non-Communist Nations of the World Should Establish an Economic Community," the debaters visited many colleges and universities throughout the East, including Dartmouth, Amherst, Pittsburgh and Wake Forest.

Among the awards won by the team were first places in the Old Dominion Tournament and University of Maryland "warm-up" tournament; second place in the Morgan State Novice Invitational; and a third place at Queens College, where 36 colleges participated.

An active on-campus program included an oratory contest and debates with Harvard, Navy, and the University of Vermont.

John O'Day practices his debate form while fellow debater Bob Stone listens.

Orchestra and Chorale

The American University Orchestra, under the direction of Mark Ellsworth, practices weekly in the TV Studio. It is comprised of some 25 students and is always willing to accept additional qualified members.

The ninety voices of the American University Choral are directed by Harlem Laufman. One of their most important performances was a spring concert at the National Cathedral.

The orchestra practices under the capable baton of Mr. Ellsworth.

Long practice sessions such as these precede the excellent performances for which the Chorale is noted.

American University Players

Concentrating on noted playwrights, the University Players completed their season with five plays to their credit.

Leading off the year in October was William Shakespeare's, "Measure for Measure," which featured Thomas Hartman, James Lee, James Parisi, Steven Drysdale, Donald Knight and Marsha Greenspan.

Starring in the second play, Henrik Ibsen's, "Wild Duck," were William Whitman, Tara Lowe, Jane Singer, James Baraff and Donald Arrington.

In February, the third play, "The Guardsman," by Ferenc Molnar was presented. It featured William Whitman, Tara Lowe, Steven Drysdale and Julia Cheyfitz.

"Desire Under the Elms," by Eugene O'Neill, presented in March, starred William Whitman, John Douglass and Marsha Greenspan.

Rounding out the season in April was George Bernard Shaws, "You Never Can Tell," which combined the talents of David Weisser, Helen Hutchinson, Barry Bauer, Jack Weaver and Dawn Didawick.

The Athletics

Sports are an integral part of school life. Skills in playing and techniques are perfected on the courts and fields on the campus. Most of the major sports are represented at American University, either in the intramural or varsity sports program.

Eagle halfback John Gorman on the attack against Gallaudet. Gorman's strong defensive and offensive play helped inspire the AU attack.

Varsity goalie George Lewis was instrumental in helping the booters to their first winning season. Lewis, a junior, was new to the sport this year, but played like a veteran.

Co-Captain Jim MacIver moves up field, controlling the ball, in an attempt to start an Eagle attack on the Catholic goal.

Senior forward Simeon Makarov prepares to give the ball a healthy boot against the Catholic Cardinals.

The American University varsity soccer team, under the leadership of Coach Howard Sorrell and Co-Captains Jim MacIver and Fred Schwartz, posted its first winning season in four years as it recorded a 4-4-1 record. In fact, the .500 mark was made after the Eagles dropped their first four games to conference foes.

The booters collected their first win of the season against Gallaudet. Co-Captains MacIver and Schwartz netted goals, while Skip Johnson was responsible for the third goal in the 3-0 shutout. AU followed this win with an exciting lastminute tie with highly-rated Washington & Lee. With 50 seconds remaining, Soph Issac Heim-binder headed the ball past the W&L goalie for his second score of the game and a 4-4 tie.

Captain Schwartz rammed home three goals against Georgetown to lead the Eagles over the Hoyas, 6-4. This victory was followed with a 4-2 win over Washington College. Leonard Leshley collected two of the Eagles' goals, while the Co-Captains scored one each.

In the outstanding game of the season, the booters defeated Catholic University 2-0 for the first win over the Cardinals in the school history.

Co-Captains MacIver and Schwartz each scored, but it was the outstanding defense of AU that kept CU from tying the game during the later stages of the ball game.

Freshman Soccer

Under the direction of Douglas Price, American University started its first freshman soccer team. The baby booters, composed of a few veteran high school players, had trouble winning, but by the end of the season they were a closely knit unit ready to take over varsity positions next year. The frosh were led by Co-Captains Cyrus Eliah and Andy Kilgore.

Assistant Coach Jack Linden reads the times as varsity men Jim Hancock and Ed Orem cross the finish line in meet against Washington College.

The varsity cross country team posted a 5-2 record, while placing third in the Loyola Invitational and seventh in the MD championships. This year's team, coached by Tom Evaul and Jack Leyden, was led by Juniors Ed Orem and Fred Cheney. Orem set a new course record of 18:05.5 against Catholic U. A freshman team was also started this year, but lack of participation limited its action.

Varsity star Ed Orem comes in after a long practice session.

WRESTLING

The wrestling team ended the year with a 2-8 record and a sixth place finish in the Mason-Dixon Conference championships. This year's squad was lead by Captain John McCune, who placed fourth in the M-D championships.

The star of this year's squad was senior Simeon Makarov, who won his third Mason-Dixon title at 123 pounds and also walked off with most valuable wrestling award at the M-D championships. Sophomore Burke Byrnes also came through for AU, placing third in the championships.

This year's schedule was highlighted by the addition of Middle Atlantic schools, Gettysburg and Temple. The ten match schedule was the biggest in the history of the Eagle squad.

Other varsity wrestlers this year were, Dave Phillips, Ric Foster, Phil Margolin, Roger Pearson, Bob Clark, Rich Pine and Tom Zimmerer.

Under the leadership of year coach Jim Williams the AU basketball team posted a 10-12 mark. Jumping off to a 7-4 record, the hoopsters proceeded to lose eight of their next eleven games as Co-Captain Alton Dillard was lost to the team after sustaining a fractured knee cap in AU's loss to Georgetown.

The Eagles lost three early season games by one point. They were defeated in the homecoming game, 73-72 by the Quantico Marines, followed by a 70-69 loss to Colgate and a 59-58 defeat at the hands of Temple.

The year's first win came against Adelphi College, 73-56.

Three Eagles received recognition for outstanding play during the season. Co-Captains Dillard, Jim Shickora and Ron Rawlins were all named to ECAC teams of the week. Rawlins was also named Most-Valuable player at the DC Christmas Tournament.

Also starring for the Eagles were Juniors Bill Green and Carl Aspenburg and Sophomores Jim Buffler, Ron Haight, Ralph Baird and Ben Still.

Two of the Eagles outstanding games of the season were against Connecticut U. and Georgetown U. The UCONNS defeated AU, 64-58, but not before Jim Buffler led a late period drive which brought the Eagles from 18 to within 3 points of the eventual NCAA playoff squad.

In the Georgetown game the Eagles led for most of the game as Dillard collected 27 points and 27 rebounds.

In tournament competition the Eagles won one and took second in another. The first DC Holiday tourney was won by the Eagles as they defeated the Coast Guard Academy and Catholic U. The Eagles placed second at Quantico defeated Belmont Abbey and Northern Ohio, before losing to the Marines 94-92.

Freshman Basketball

This year's baby hoopsters were led by former AU great, Eddy Clements. Leading the team were Wilson Purcell, Tony Jirole and Jack Townsend. Other members of the 1962-63 team included Jim Wendt, Bill Mason, Bob Barton, Ron Jacobs, Cary Yates, Jim Cina, Al Carter and Tony Irion.

The 62-63 schedule consisted of college freshman squads and High School varsities. One of the Eagles easier games was against the Baltimore frosh. Behind Purcells 21 points the Eagles won going away, 76-46.

The hoopsters were defeated by outstanding teams from Maryland University, Navy and Dematha High School.

With a good infield, two top pitchers and a lot of hitters, the AU baseball team began the 1963 season with ideas of winning the Mason-Dixon conference title. However, early season injuries and poor weather conditions side-tracked the Eagle express.

Sophomore Howie Schacter, in his second season of varsity action, pitched three excellent early games, but lost them all. Losing 4-1 to Syracuse, 3-0 to Connecticut and 2-1 to Loyola. Sophomore Fred Schwartz collected the Eagles first win of the season defeating DC Teachers, 6-1 on two hits.

The Eagles solid infield was composed of Ron Rawlins, Steve Kellner, Clark Raybond and Bill Laubenstein. Captain Tom Marshall led the outfielders which included Shorty Dean, Kim Shoop and Hugh Buckingham. Steve Nemphoos and Bill Lishear split catching and outfield duties.

The varsity squad got a big boost with the addition of former Eagle great Bob Brummer in late April. The former no-hit artist returned to the pitching ward after a year's absence.

Track

The American University track team under the guidance of first year coach Jack Linden, took on its biggest and toughest schedule this year. Not only were Gettysburg and Temple University added to the Eagles' schedule, but Coach Linden also led the Eagles into Penn and Quantico Relays.

This year's team was lead by veteran miler Ed Orem along with hurdlers Jim Hackett and Jim O'Neil. This year's season can be considered a transitional one for the cindermen. With the creation of a freshman squad and the loss of several veterans, including weight man Alton Dillard, the varsity squad was small and had little depth.

With the entire varsity returning next year, Coach Linden will also have the use of Freshman stars Bob Campbell, Kent Amos, Barry Thornes and Jan Braathen. Also expected to return to action is sprint star Ed Ball, who was ineligible during the past season.

The AU tennis team went through a year of rebuilding after the loss of several veterans. The inexperienced squad was led by Junior Paul Aronsky who was named captain.

Number two man was Jim Coolsen, while March Coleman, Bill Sloan, Rub Klaus, and Harry Hulings completed the regular squad members. Sloan, who will be remembered for his excellent doubles play, was the only senior on the 1963 squad.

The 1963 team completed a twelve-match schedule, which included matches against Syracuse, Lafayette, Georgetown and Mt. St. Mary's.

Under the guidance of Coach Curt Adkins, the AU crew team completed its first winning season. The Eagles eight completed their third varsity season with major wins over Iona, Fordham, St. John's and St. Peters.

Highlighting this season was the winning of the F. L. Garimaldi Regatta held in the New York City area. The regatta, in its first season, is held to honor a former St. John's oarsmen who was drowned during a 1962 practice.

On April 27 the Eagles christened their new shell the American Eagle.

Cheerleaders

The American University Cheerleaders hold an important responsibility and a coveted honor. Each one has been chosen not only for her acrobatic ability and vocal capacity but also for the manner in which she will hopefully represent her school. At each basketball game, win or loose, these girls are presently boosting school spirit.

It takes a large amount of interest in one's school to devote as much time and energy as our cheerleaders have. For the dedication they have shown, thanks are expressed to the Eagles' most faithful fans-the cheerleaders.
